FrenchCreek Production Unveils its Line of Heat Resistant 'Kevlar' Products

—FCP adds a Complete Line of Kevlar Safety Products to their Fall Protection and Rescue/Recovery Equipment that meets or exceeds OSHA and ANSI Standards.

FRANKLIN, PA - January, 2008 – FrenchCreek Production Inc., a manufacturer of quality Fall Protection and Rescue/Recovery Equipment has officially unveiled its full line of Heat Resistant 'KEVLAR' Products.

Although this line of Kevlar equipment has been manufactured by FCP, for the past 12 years, it was primarily available through special order requests only! Now it is being offered as a standard product, yet because FrenchCreek Production is a custom manufacturer, the Fire Resistant Kevlar line still has the potential to be customized to the specific needs of the end user.

FrenchCreek harnesses, lanyards, and other safety equipment made from Heat Resistant Kevlar are intended to be used in any job application in which heat, flames, or sparks are present or possible. Any worker within that type of setting, such as welding, should never use a standard harness or lanyard in which the materials are not resistant to heat. Standard products have the tendency to melt, burn, or weaken, rendering them useless in providing the fall protection safety for which they are designed. Other equipment is also available for use in these situations, such as cable/wire rope lanyards, cable/wire rope lifelines, and chain positioning assemblies.
